Death of a Little Boy.

William Turner Ogilvie, youngest boy of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Ogilvie, died at the home of his grandparents, in Columbia on Friday morning at 10 o'clock. Aged five and a half years. The little fellow had suffered several weeks with that dread disease typhoid fever, and it was thought he was getting along all right, but as is the case in this disease so often, a turn came for the worse and soon the end. Mr. Ogilvie was at his work in The Herald and News office when the sad message came to him. The mother was in Columbia. The funeral was conducted at the home of his grandmother in Columbia on Saturday by the Rev. Mr. Kennedy, assisted by Mr. Reeves, and interment was in Elmwood, four of his little Columbia playmates acting as pallbearers.

The Herald and News force, and some of us know what it means to part with those little ones who by their innocence and trustfulness have twined their little hearts around ours, sympathize with the parents in their sorrow. And yet sometimes we feel like saying with the poet,

Weep not for those
Who sink within the arms of death
Ere yet the chilling wintry breath
Of sorrow o'er them blows.

NEGRO BOY KILLED
BY HIS BROTHER

They Were Playing With the Gun. Picked Gun Up Off Bed and Pointed It and Shot.

Jim Cromer shot and killed his brother, Coley Cromer, on last Friday. He says he didn't intend to shoot him, or rather as the testimony puts it, "didn't go to do it." And yet the testimony says he picked up the gun off the bed and pointed it at Coley and shot him. Didn't know it was loaded, probably.

The negroes live on Mr. G. W. Kinard's place on Cannon creek in or near the Pomaria neighborhood. The coroner's jury doesn't say it was accidental and Jim Cromer is in jail.

The following is the testimony taken before the coroner on Saturday:

Horace Cromer sworn says: I was in house when boy got shot. I am his brother. Wasn't in when started. I came in and found Jim and Coley were playing with gun. Then Jim picked it up off the bed and pointed it at Coley and shot him. Saw him fall. Not mad with one another. I saw him when he shot him. Saw Jim with pistol in hand. Saw him point the gun at him. Coley fell, then I told Ma what had happened.

Julia Cromer sworn says: I am mother of boy killed. Coley came out to where I was washing with pistol. I sent him back with it and he and Jim began playing and I heard him shoot. Horace and Jim told me that Coley came in door and Jim fired it. Only one ball in the gun. I took that cartridge out after it was fired.

Berley Brown sworn says: He was out at the road when he heard the pistol fired. Came to the house and saw Coley on front porch. Said Jim was prostrated over the shooting. Jim left the house several hundred yards but I sent my boy after him and he came back to the house. Jim said to Coley that he didn't go to shoot him, but didn't understand what Coley said.

Dr. F. H. Wedaman sworn says: I examined the body of Coley Cromer and found bullet wound in skull entering one-half inch to right of right orbit of eye, ranging backwards, downward and inward into the brain, the result of which caused his death.

Dr. T. H. Wedaman.

The following is the verdict of the coroner's jury:

"That Coley Cromer came to his death from pistol shot wound in the hands of his brother Jim Cromer."

Death of Mrs. C. A. Bouknight.

Mrs. C. A. Bouknight, wife of Mr. J. R. Bouknight, died at their home in West End on Sunday about 11 o'clock after a long illness. Interment was had in Rosemont cemetery on Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The service at the home was conducted by her pastor the Rev. Mr. Cogburn. Mrs. Bouknight was a faithful member of the Pocahontas and the service at the grave was in charge of the members of that order.

Mrs. Bouknight was always of a very bright and cheerful disposition and made and held the friendship of all with whom she came in contact.

She was the mother of 12 children 11 of whom with the husband survive. All grew to manhood and womanhood. There are 42 grand children and two great grandchildren.

She will be greatly missed not only by the immediate family circle but by the members of the community in which her life was cast.

The Herald and News extends sympathy to those who mourn the death of a faithful wife and a devoted mother.

Governor Cooper tonight appointed as his successor Harry L. Watson of Greenwood, president and editor of the Index-Journal, the daily paper published at Greenwood. Mr. Watson's appointment is considered an ideal one, as he is not only one of the leading newspaper men of the State, but is deeply interested in the serial development of the sociological problems before South Carolina.

NEWBERRY COLLEGE REUNION
AT LITTLE MOUNTAIN

The Newberry college reunion will be held at Little Mountain on Friday, August 1. Gov. Cooper and President Snyder have agreed to attend and deliver addresses. The people who attend this year should make up their minds not only to go to meet old friends whom they have not seen for a season, and to roam over the hills, but they should go for the purpose of hearing the addresses of these two distinguished gentlemen, because they will bring a message worth while.

Frick-Bullock.

A beautiful wedding around which centers the interest of many friends was solemnized at Mt. Horeb Lutheran church last Wednesday evening at 9 o'clock when Miss Eva Frick became the bride of Mr. Thomas Earl Bullock.

The church was beautifully and tastefully decorated. The color scheme being green and white.

An aisle of pure white led to a beautiful rose arbor made of twining ivy daisies and roses. From the center of the arbor a white cloth was hung a large white bell.

The background was made up of ferns and palms.

Proceeding the ceremony Mrs. R. W. Frick, accompanied by Miss Stella Wessinger, sang "To You" and "Until." Then to the strains of the bridal chorus from Lohengrin, played by Miss Wessinger, the bridal party entered. First came the ushers, Robert Hiller of Chapin and Wilbur Boland of Columbia. Then came the bridesmaids with the groomsmen as follows: Miss Floy Shealy with James R. Leavell of Newberry, Miss Prima Cromer with Clarence Wallace of Newberry, Miss Amy Wolf of Laurens with Sam Derrick and Miss Mary Lou Bullock of Newberry with Alvin Frick. These took their places on either side of the rose arbor. Then came the maid of honor, Miss Winton Keaton of Antreville followed by the little flower girls, Blanche Eargle and Freda Carpenter. Next came the tiny ring bearer, Miriam Riser, niece of the bride, carrying the wedding ring in the chalice of a lily. The bride entered with her brother, Roy K. Frick. She was never leveler than in her modish dress of duchess satin and georgette trimmed with pearls. Her dainty tulle veil was caught with orange blossoms and her bouquet was of brides roses showered with lilies of the valley. She was met by the bridegroom and his best man, Glen Bullock, under the arbor, in front of the altar where the ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. L. Cromer, pastor of the bride, and the Rev. W. D. Wise, brother-in-law of the bride. During the ceremony Miss Wessinger played "To a Wild Rose" and Mendelssohn's wedding march was used as a recessional.

During the prayer ceremony the bride and groom knelt upon a white satin pillow beautifully designed and handpainted with pansies and cupids, work of the bride.

Two of the bridesmaids, Misses Shealy and Cromer, were dressed in georgette dresses of turquoise blue with picture hats to match, carrying pink and white carnations, while Misses Wolf and Bullock wore dresses of pink georgette with hats to match, carrying pink and white carnations.

Miss Keaton, maid of honor, wore a lovely dress of white georgette with hat to match carrying pink and white carnations.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents at which an ice course and punch were served. When the snowy wedding cake was cut the emblems of fate fell to the following: The thimble to Miss Winton Keaton, the ring to Miss Mary Lou Bullock, the penny to Miss Floy Shealy, the dime to James R. Leavell, and the button to Glen Bullock. As the bride ascended the stairway to don her traveling suit she tossed her bouquet and it was caught by Miss Mary Lou Bullock. After the reception the young couple motored to Newberry and from there went to Waynesville.

Miss Bullock, a graduate of Columbia college, is a young woman of charming personality and will be greatly missed in her home town. Mr. Bullock is a successful business man of Newberry.

Prof. O. B. Cannon, Rev. S. P. Koon, Rev. J. W. Carson of Newberry and R. D. Webb and Miss Cora Holland, representing the State association, were speakers on the program. The hospitable people living in this community provided a tempting dinner which was spread on the ground at the noon hour.

Plans for a number of district conventions were agreed on at this convention. A series of meetings will be held in the county on August 14, 15, 16 and 17. A State field worker will assist the local county workers in these conventions.
